

5

A method of optimizing data transfer in a cellular mobile radio system which implements a procedure liable to disturb said transfer of data, wherein said transfer of data is continued during implementation of said procedure with a reduced size of the radio protocol data units transferred.